Friends of A. L. Hardy of Amherst, Mass., a former teacher at St. Johnsbury academy and well-known member of the Greensboro colony, will be interested to know that 16 prominent citizens of Amherst gave him a banquet on October 3 and presented him with a gold ring. The affair was a complete surprise to him. He recently resigned after being superintendent of schools for 16 years.

Miss Kate Manning, a Brightlook graduate who has been in charge of a private hospital at Cambridge, Mass., for two years, is now superintendent of nurses at the Cottage hospital, Woodville.

Dr. J. M. Allen was on the program as a speaker for the 12th annual meeting of the Coo County Medical society at Lancaster yesterday.

ST. J. A. 7, MONTPELIER SEM. 19. Good Game of Foot Ball on the Campus Saturday Afternoon.

Although the score might indicate that Montpelier Seminary had things their own way on the Campus Saturday afternoon, those present can tell an altogether different story. In fact the visitors were pressed hard by St. J. A. and had it not been for accidents to two of their strongest men the outcome might have been different.

The first half ended with the locals in the lead 7 to 6, Warden having placed the pignskin beyond Montpelier's posts and Vitty having beaten the uprisings for the extra point.

In the first period of play Vitty got a bad bump and although he continued in the game he admits that at times things were a bit hazy. He was perceptibly off in his stride after the injury, but gamely stuck it out. Captain Gallagher was also put on the casualty list, being injured in the second period. After treatment at the field station he insisted on going back to the firing line and gave a good account of himself until the end.

The third quarter was a repetition of the first with the locals forcing the visitors down the field by sheer strength but neither could score and it looked like St. J. A.'s game was a point but in the final session the visitors got busy. Two touchdowns and a goal were the result of this rally.

Features of the game were H. Pike's diving over the local line for good gains and a new formation play by Montpelier. The line would be drawn back and then on signal, thrown against one end of the local line for an end run. This also proved a consistent ground gainer and had much to do with the scoring in the last quarter. St. J. A. goes to Littleton Saturday and are confident that they will then break their losing streak. Summary:
